

Skeleton on a Bicycle

A visitor pedals a bicycle that is synchronized to a second bicycle. The second bicycle has a skeleton mounted on it. As the visitor pedals, the skeleton mimics the visitor's leg and hip actions to reveal the complex movement of our skeletal system as they perform this simple task.

Drawing by Lunny Communications Group and Aldrich Pears Associates

www.exhibiteers.com